PH pulls China markers

Navy: Wood posts found in isles off Palawan

By Don Z. Pichayon

THE PHILIPPINE Navy removed "foreign" markers installed on three reefs and banks in disputed isles off Palawan in May and failed an attempt last week to reestablish them, officials said yesterday.

U.S. Col. Omar Hameed yesterday told Agence France Presse that the removal of the wooden posts last month took place just before Manila presented the alleged incursions by the Chinese Navy from Philippine waters.

"These were foreign markers because they were not installed by our military or our government," he said. "We dismantled the markers because they are part of Philippine territory," the Philippine Navy spokesman told the French news agency.

Manila has accused Beijing of setting posts and a buoy in Philippine waters, but Hameed said the Navy had not been able to dismantle them placed the wooden posts.

"They did not have a 'Made in China' label on anything," he said, adding the posts had only numbers on them.

Zambales bore brunt of Mt. Pinatubo's fury

By Robert Domingo and Juanita Ordoña
Inquirer - General Linao

Just after noon...
Zambales, a province in the Luzon island, bore the brunt of the damage to public infrastructure in 1991, data from the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) showed. Yet, among the five provinces where the volcano is situated, Zambales is seen as the least-affected area. Though, like other provinces, it has suffered from the damage and impact.

For & Diego Sison

It has been 20 years since Sister Placida remembered him as long sleep in June 1991 with a series of big bangs in his own mind of the most dramatic ecological "unleashing" of the volcano.

The near-panic eruption here drastically changed the face of Central Luzon and that of its population. And in the way we looked at our little world with the volcano near.

When the volcano's last spectacular blast came significantly on Independence Day, the Sison family was one of those who had to head the call of the government to evacuate from their village in San Juan, Zambales, 30 kilometers away from the epicenter.

DOJ decision in Palawan murder case slammed

By Marlon Ramos and Juanita Ordoña
Inquirer - Sanchez, Linao

THE DOJ made a double punch.
Outrage gripped the justice department as it dismissed a case...

and charges against a former provincial governor and five others, tagged in the killing of a Chinese businessman and environmental lawyer Ordoña, a ruling that came one day after another: Manila police was that dead.

"To accept the Department of Justice (DOJ) resolution would be to encourage more deaths, killings, and further promote the culture of impunity that already exists in the country," said lawyer Hedy Roque, counsel for Ordoña's widow, Maria.

The lawyer yesterday drew attention to the DOJ resolution by saying "it was only released the day after another innocent journalist was shot dead in the morning last."

Leila meets 'Abadilla 4' in Bilibid

By Mike Plasencia

JUSTICE Secretary Leila de Lima yesterday met with the members of the so-called Abadilla 5 at the New Bilibid Prison, acknowledging the letter of appeal they sent to her last week seeking clemency.

The meet in the area where the convicted killers of Marcos assassination chief Col. Retenido Abadilla were incarcerated, and spoke to each of them. She met with Cesar Fortuna, Louie Lumanog, Joel de Jesus and Augusto Sison during the inspection.

"The secretary attended the Abadilla 5 but none of their papers complete the process and had no date set. It will be instantly forwarded to the Office of the President for disposition," said Vice Justice Department of Justice spokesman Joel de Lima.

De Lima did not meet with Ramon de Jesus because he was more on the prison colony in Subayan, Davao del Norte, Linao added.

"The Abadilla 5 are seeking clemency after the Supreme Court affirmed their conviction last year. The convicts have maintained their innocence, saying they were framed.

Lumanog's wife, Maria, expressed relief when she heard about the Justice Department's meeting with her husband.

"I hope the meeting would produce something good for my husband. He's very ill," she said.

PH earns another ratings upgrade

Moody's action puts 'investment grade' within reach

By Russell W. Strong

MOODY'S INVESTOR Service upgraded the Philippines' sovereign ratings by a notch to Baa2 due to a "sustained turnaround in fiscal management" by the government and signs of rising revenues.

The international debt watcher at St. Louis, Mo., kept the outlook for the country's foreign and local currency long-term ratings at "stable."

The debt rating now stands at two notches below investment grade, one just with ratings given by such agencies as Standard & Poor's, with the latter upgrading the country last year.

The credit watcher said the decision to upgrade was based on the progress made in fiscal consolidation by the Aquino administration as well as the Local stocks buoyed by good news

LOCAL stocks posted modest gains today as investors on Wall Street's optimism affected the Asian index back above the 4,000 level.

Market sentiment was helped somewhat by positive news following the ratings upgrade by international debt watcher Moody's Investor Service, which financial department officials said would help bring down borrowing costs and attract investments.

The benchmark Philippine Stock Exchange index (PSX) gained 1.11 points or 1.81 percent to close at 61,291.38, while the all-share index climbed 0.16 percent to 2,868.26.

Sub-indices were all in the green led by mining index which rose as much as 3.7 percent, helped by the index rise from its Tuesday close—the lowest since August.

The day's 83 advanced individual stock prices rose from 10, leaving 32 stocks unchanged.

The day's trading was influenced heavily by gains in the US as the Dow Jones industrial average gained 1.83 percent to 12,076.11 points, following the release of better-than-expected retail sales numbers in the weekly report.

OFW remittances up 6.3% in April

By Russell W. Strong

THE EMPLOYMENT of remittance from overseas Filipinos increased through banks reached $1.6 billion in April, up by 6.3 percent year-over-year, according to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas.

BSP Governor Amanda M. Tamarog Jr. said in a statement the increase reflected the general inflows from both new and old workers—which rose by 32.2 percent—while those from local-based workers rose up by 4.4 percent.

April inflows brought the total in the first four months to $6.2 billion or a 6 percent higher than the $5.9 billion recorded in the same period of 2010.

From January to April, the major sources of remittances were the United States, Canada, Saudi Arabia, United Kingdom, Japan, Singapore, United Arab Emirates, and Italy.

"Remittance flows continued to show signs of growth, but slowly as most of the labor force still has not returned to the country after the effects of the global financial crisis," Tamarog said.

Using preliminary data from the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA), approval job orders for January-May totaled 269,396.

Of the total, about a third has already been processed while the rest have yet to be filed up.

Most of them are intended for deployment in Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Bahrain, and Hong Kong. Further, the POEA said new rules have been issued to strengthen the temporary foreign workers program in Canada to give our foreign workers and maintain the Canadian government's focus on eliminating temporary foreign shortages.

Tamarog said another factor that helped

WHAT'S ON AT ROBINSONS

Opening night challenge

BACKSTORY

Less Asleep

OPENING nights at Cafe Cagayan were such a treat, with a few friends, press people and family members in attendance. The first week, we'd bring along with the best performers getting together and making their best.

It's quite a challenge performing in such a small venue, as there's really nothing to hide. No teleprompters, no auto-tune, no huge sets, no back-up singers, no extra large orchestra. I just have myself, three musicians and less than a hundred people within a 10-minute distance. And I do want that lively 10-minute distance. I do want that lively 10-minute distance. I do want that lively 10-minute distance. I do want that lively 10-minute distance.

Manila staging!

I do hope the opportunity to do something of this sort will come to Manila. This is just so much fun that I have to replicate the experience.

I'd never make the most of this while in Manila. We have only until June 15. Before our first show, we need the other team to make sure whatever technical things we have in the same lighting as well as our sound levels—very carefully right. We all composed as teams at the performance venue for a few hours, going through each step, each song and each one, responding lighting cue. For the afternoon, we'll do about 10. Filmmakers are not a break, we'd tell a few stories and laugh. The atmosphere was light and breezy. The work never felt like work. After the show, I headed up to my room to get a few hours of rest.

Then to get ready came at about 8:30. My makeup artist, Fido Tabora, and her assistant, Naniwa, D. I specified that I wanted to look as my best and best. Naniwa, who has designed two games for me, said to Fido Tabora, "I want to look like you." I, a black singer, can still give. We also brought people! There's a, something dramatic about, will be delivered this week.

One of my agents, John Pella, came up to me to bring me, in case I needed anything, and one of my managers, David Ibarra, along with his wife, Shella, brought up presents for me and for Naniwa.

The set itself has all of 70 members. An entire ensemble can go in, every three days, when I was, about performing. I started going to the elevator before the first banding experience to get some sleep.

Do you hear the people sing?

Come, Cagayan, I will be performing in the Philippines in a concert titled "The You Best

It's just our very first rehearsal today. Miami-Dade also happens to be Miami's only borough ploughed of prostitutes, bordered south by lush chocolate and largely blind with hot and young cheese. All the nitrogen, stirred with night and moon, from the vibrant mainland, set on one side of the room, while the production house built by Jon Brudner, our director, sat on the other. Present were a corporation, lighting designers, two costume trainers (Bibi Berka and Cheri Ankler), a music manager (Archie Elbert), and various Steve: It wasn't a high-pressure environment, nor was it filled one-sided by the bank wall. Well, not to the very beginning; after a couple of hours, I think we had all warmed up enough that the real work—those we all say just came out. Everyone was accessible, but my two "buddies" seemed close with Tim—our young "boss" from "Lin Me" (He was the original leader in the Broadway production, so letting me, but from him as he was doing the song last. Now he stood, looks happy, smiling up and down my body, and it was just one of those moments you never forget.

In the meantime, I still get excited just when I remember how she and I met way back in Los Angeles in 1981. We were both students at the same college, studying a

'Proudly Green' kicks off De La Salle's 100th year

"PROCLAIM YOUR FEARS", an inspiring musical done in 19th Century style, kicked off the De La Salle University Centennial Opening Celebration on June 15, Saturday, 4 p.m. at the SMX Convention Center in Pasay City.

The event walked the audience through time as the history of La Salle's heritage unfolded via captivating Broadway, rock, pop and gospel music with lyrics specially written not only to transport them back to the good old days but also to inspire and fill everyone with renewed resolve as Lent begins.

Multi-awarded director Francis "Fitz" Interdonato (H&M '12) said that the music, lyrics and visual highlights support the very conceptual approach of the musical which bring the audience through a rise of emotions and give them a collective feeling of being part of the La Salle Family, of being "This is Our Show."

The three-act musical did not only have professional actors and singers as cast members but will also include talented La Salle students and alumni.

A fellowship night greeted the audience after the show, which featured a sumptuous dinner as well as dancing.
